CONTENTS

Katarzyna Murawska-Muthesius, Introduction: geography of art, orbordering the Other? ........................................... 9

I. ART HISTORY AND THE ONTOLOGY OF BORDERS

Stefan Muthesius, Kunstgeographie revamped? ......................... 19

John Onians, The biological and geographical bases of cultural borders: the case of the earliest European prehistoric art .............. 27

Marcin Fabiański, How can an artistic region be defined? The case of early-modern Central Europe ............................... 35

Piotr Piotrowski, The geography of Central/East European art .... 43

Miles Glendinning, Islands and borders: concepts of national identity in English, Scottish and Irish architecture .......................... 51

II. FORMALIST BORDERS – VERIFIED AND DISPLACED

Dethard von Winterfeld, Borders in Central European romanesque architecture: regions, centres, provinces or nations? ............... 57

Steffani Becker-Hounslow, The formation of decorative vaulting in Prussia ......................................................... 61

Olgierd Czerner, The limits of the gothic style in the architecture of the Western Ukraine: the border between Central and Eastern Europe ...................................................... 69

Andrzej Baranowski, The baroque geography of the Polish Commonwealth: centres and peripheries ............................... 77
Francis Ames-Lewis, The Alps: a barrier to exchange in the fifteenth century? ................................................................. 87

III. CENTRES, CITIES, IDENTITIES

1. CITIES

Elisabeth de Bievre, Borders in the mind, borders in art. Borders in the Netherlands circa 1600: Antwerp and Amsterdam ............... 95

Jerzy Miziołek, Observations on the artistic geography of Italian Renaissance domestic painting ............................................. 107

Jacek Purchla, Lvov and Cracow in the nineteenth century: two centres of Galician architecture .................................................. 117

David Crowley, The Peasant in the City: tembroidery in writings on architecture in Austria-Hungary around 1900 ....................... 127

Peter Martyn, Urbanity and fluctuating state borders: architectural identity and obliteration of Warsaw in the first half of the twentieth century ................................................................. 139

2. PERIPHERIES

Jörg Richter, Gothic as a stylistic gesture: the early reception of gothic in the Kingdom of Bohemia .............................................. 151

Tomasz Dziubecki, Between image and icon: the Passion in Polish art of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries .......................... 155

3. TRANSIDENTITIES

Paul Crossley, 'Monuments to the mighty will of their builders': a footnote on Prussian Backsteingotik and the problem of 'German' vaults in the territory of the Teutonic Knights ................................. 161

Tomasz Torbus, Resuscitating the 'Polish Periods' in the reconstruction process in western and northern Poland post 1945 ........ 175

Irena Kossowska, The 'new classicism' in Polish graphic arts: Paris or Cracow? ................................................................. 181
IV. FRAMING THE OTHER

1. THE CASE OF UPPER SILESIA

Ewa Chojecka, Upper Silesia: borderland phenomena in art historical studies .................................................. 191

Dorota Głązek, Upper Silesian neo-baroque on both sides of the border .................................................. 197

Irma Kozina, Upper Silesian architecture of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries and the question of national consciousness . . . 205

Beate Szymanski-Störtkuhl, Interwar Silesian architecture in the tension-zone of national assertiveness .......................... 211

Barbara Szczypka-Gwiazda, Polish and German concepts architecture and town-planning in Upper Silesia between World War I and World War II .................................................. 221

Stefan Muthesius, Germany’s western and eastern borders: the architecture of Alsace-Lorraine and Eastern Upper Silesia c. 1870-1935 .................................................. 227

2. BORDERING EASTERN EUROPE

Andrzej Szczerski, Writing and rewriting of the borders of European art nouveau .................................................. 233

Katarzyna Murawska-Muthesius, Who drew the Iron Curtain? Images East and West .................................................. 241

David Hall, Celluloid borders: representing the Cold war on film . . 249

Agata Jakubowska, Feminist artists, where do they speak from? . . 259

Contributors .................................................. 267